A CRITICAL VIEW OF CELEBRITY FASHION

EMELIE GRIMBORN, 22,
 Hawthorn, student

I'm from Sweden so I love every day of summer in Melbourne. I'm going to the beach so have my bikini on and will be going straight out after so need to look a bit stylish. I love wearing white in summer to bring out the tan. I don't spend a lot of money on clothes, but I don't think you can tell with this outfit because it still looks expensive. My things are from Sweden and this bag is great for the gym, the beach or a long weekend.

WHAT THE EXPERT SAYS

This girl is wearing the most important accessory you can have in fashion – a smile. Good fashion is about feeling great and having confidence. A relaxed bohemian style that is perfect for warm casual days. Great personalised accessories give her an individual style.

Jennifer Nettles ✓

Victoria Beckham made her mark at the Grammys without even attending, when the Sugarland singer wore a stunning black and red strapped gown designed by Posh. Of course, it helped having super spunk Jon Bon Jovi as a handbag.

Nadeaa ✗

Apparently she's the daughter of a Russian mathematician and a Polish supermodel – not sure she's got either of the parental talents. The singer's not very special (that amount of cloth could never cover that bum or those boobs) and as for catwalk style ... poof, straight out the window.

Phoebe Price ✗

A moth-eaten sack that wouldn't do even a supermodel justice. Spangly with pasted on floral (kinda) motifs and cut-out sleeves – looks like something left at the city dump.
