SAKitToMe says 'save the Earth'

1 THE new must-have accessory SAKiToMe – soon to be seen on the arms of women across Australia. Doing your bit for the environment means thinking outside the plastic bag, and this season it's all in the pouch. SAKiToMe is the brainchild of two busy mums who have juggled their day jobs and their families to bring you an eco-hero on a key ring that can hold up to 10 kilos – so you can say no to plastic bags whenever you go. Unlike current eco-bags, SAKiToMe is a stylish hold-all coming in six bold geometric prints and designed by home-grown talent. And it's not just for shopping – the water-resistant, durable bag can be used for swimming, sports, at the beach and picnics. Available at www.envirotrend.com.au

Powerhouse lemon with garden-appeal

5 LOTS A' Lemons really is the little plant with big results: it is a dwarf lemon shrub that grows up to 1.5m tall and wide but with full-sized fruit. The beauty of Lots A' Lemons is that it's ideally suited to growing in pots, courtyards, patios and small gardens. It is small and speedy, producing fruit from its first year. What makes Lots A' Lemons even more special is that it's NOT a grafted variety. Developed in Australia by Clyde Plant Nurseries in trials over ten years, Lots A' Lemons has proven to be disease resistant and can live as long as conventional citrus trees. Lots A' Lemons could be the start of your easy-maintenance edible garden. It looks great, smells great, is compact, easy to move and it even tastes great. Tara Valley Nurseries are the sole distributor of Lots A' Lemons in Queensland. All trade enquiries should be directed to Tara Valley Nursery – Ph: 32876139. 5 □ Lots A' Lemons to be won, simply cut out the pic and send to Lots A' Lemons, 197 Mary Street, Gympie 4570.

WotWot wonder

The WotWots is a series celebrating the joy of discovery, and the strange and extraordinary diversity of life on planet Earth, as seen through the innocent eyes of SpottyWot and DottyWot. It is a series that can be enjoyed by both children and their parents, as they join SpottyWot and DottyWot on their adventures around the zoo. In each episode the WotWots help children to celebrate and understand the diversity of the animal world. They recognise kindness and co-operation as core values and delight in learning new words.
